

Madeleine Clifford is a writer, rhymers, and teaching artist originally from Seattle. She has taught creative writing to youth through Streetside Stories and Youth Speaks and holds an MFA in Creative Writing from Mills College. She has a number of awards and publications and has performed her poetry and hip-hop widely in the Bay Area.

Annie Rovzar holds an MFA in Creative Writing from the University of San Francisco and has taught creative writing to youth through ExCel After School Programs and Casa de la Solidaridad in El Salvador. She has also worked with youth through Making Waves Education Program and AmericaScores. She is passionate about work that connects creative writing and social good.