Part I. Service Needs, Priorities & Strategy – (Government Code Section 30061(b)(4)(A))

A. Assessment of Existing Services

Include here an assessment of existing law enforcement, probation, education, mental health, health, social services, drug and alcohol, and youth services resources that specifically target at-risk juveniles, juvenile offenders, and their families.

In March 2017, the City and County of San Francisco submitted the Comprehensive Multi-Agency Local Action Plan: Strategies for San Francisco Juvenile Justice to the Board of State and Community Corrections, which includes an assessment of services that target at-risk juveniles, juvenile offenders, and their family. The plan includes summaries of community demographics, data on juvenile offenses and arrests, race/ethnicity of youth in the system compared to the youth population in San Francisco and information on detention utilization as well as characteristics of current youth programs and participants. The City and County of San Francisco continues to implement strategies outlined in the Local Action Plan.

In January 2019, San Francisco's Department of Children Youth and Families (DCYF) in partnership with the City's Juvenile Probation Department (SFJPD), Adult Probation Department (APD), Sherriff's Office and Office of the District Attorney, selected American Institutes for Research (AIR) as the lead research firm to assess probation, education, mental health, health, social services, drug and alcohol, and youth services resources that target at-risk juveniles, juvenile offenders, and their families. AIR's key evaluation activities are continuing through 2021-2022. Activities include reviews of relevant literature on juvenile justice to inform development of an evaluation framework, data collection from DCYF and Justice Partners, including JPD, APD, etc., analyses of youth participation data, stakeholder engagement to assess service implementation, and presentations of findings and recommendations for continuous quality improvement to DCYF and Justice Partners.

Describe what approach will be used to facilitate collaboration amongst the organizations listed above and support the integration of services.

DCYF regularly convenes leaders from the City's broad continuum of agencies that provide services for at-risk juveniles, juvenile offenders, and their families. Partners include the City's Juvenile Probation Department, Adult Probation Department, Sheriff's Office, and Office of the District Attorney. The San Francisco Juvenile Probation Department (SFJPD) will continue to work in close collaboration with the Department of Children Youth and Their Families (DCYF) and additional City partners, such as Adult Probation, the Sheriff's Office, and the District Attorney's Office, as well as community partners such as the Juvenile Justice Providers Association to refine implementation of strategies outlined in the Local Action Plan.

Through regular meetings with Justice Partners, agency leaders identify potential service improvements and opportunities for refining the implementation of strategies outlined in the Local Action Plan across City agencies. Since 2019, Justice Partners successfully led several technical assistance and capacity building trainings that strengthened and aligned department staff and community-based organization staff skills and approaches for serving at-risk juveniles, juvenile offenders, and their families. The trainings were widely attended and included Young Adult Criminal Justice 101 (5/20/20); Department of Public Health Behavioral Health Transitional Age Youth System of Care 101 (9/30/20); Managing Holiday Stress for Practitioners Training (12/16/20); and most recently Positive Youth Development in Juvenile Justice Training (5/18/21) and Intensive Life Coaching (5/4/21 and 6/1/21). Planning is underway for additional trainings through FY 21-22.

B. Identifying and Prioritizing Focus Areas

Identify and prioritize the neighborhoods, schools, and other areas of the county that face the most significant public safety risk from juvenile crime.

Current reports surface disproportionate rates of contact at the neighborhood level. While young people in San Francisco's Bayview-Hunters Point only make up approximately 10% of San Francisco's youth population they account for approximately 20% of all referrals to the Juvenile Probation Department. Similarly, young people from Visitacion Valley are over-represented among JPD's referrals.

Across currently funded Justice Services programs, juvenile participants live overwhelmingly in Bayview-Hunters Point (26%). Other neighborhoods with increased proportions of youth engaging in Justice Services programming include the Mission, South of Market, Excelsior and the Tenderloin.

C. Juvenile Justice Action Strategy

Describe your county's juvenile justice action strategy. Include an explanation of your county's continuum of responses to juvenile crime and delinquency as well as a description of the approach used to ensure a collaborative and integrated approach for implementing a system of swift, certain, and graduated responses for at-risk youth and juvenile offenders.

San Francisco will continue to focus on priority strategies outlined in the Local Action Plan. System-level strategies include refining policies and practices, service connection and coordination, supporting a trained and supported workforce; and collaboration and connection. Direct service level strategies include refining the alternatives to formal involvement & incarceration; alternative education; quality programming; and whole family engagement.

Direct service strategies aim to deter youth from deeper involvement in the justice system and to successfully complete court requirements; provide opportunities for justice-involved youth to engage in educational opportunities and positive skill building activities. DCYF Justice Services Service Areas include Cultural Programming, Detention Based Services, Girls' and Young Women's Programming, and Multi Service. DCYF also established an additional program strategy,

Connective Services, under which programs aim to connect at-risk juveniles to caring adult role models who can support them in their upward mobility and success. Connective Services programs include mentoring, activities that support the development of caring relationships between youth and staff, individual and group support, connection to needed services and resources, approaches to behavior management such as restorative justice practices, positive youth development activities, culturally focused and healing circles, and will promote positive social and emotional learning.

D. Comprehensive Plan Revisions

Describe how your Plan has been updated for this year.

Our overall plan has not been updated as it was designed to align with Department of Children, Youth and Their Families (DCYF) strategies in the Justice Services Service Areas that include Cultural Programming, Detention Based Services, Girls' and Young Women's Programming, and Multi Service. DCYF's current funding cycle is from their FY 2018-2023. This 5 year funding cycle will allow DCYF to work effectively with community based organizations to deliver the best results for San Francisco's children, youth and their families.

We have made some community-based program adjustments and are using local funds to support those programs. We have also added Family Navigator support services.

If your Plan has not been updated this year, explain why no changes to your plan are necessary.

Our plan does not need to be changed at this time because the funded strategies continue to be effective and meets the needs of at risk, juvenile offenders and their families. The strategies also align with the DCYF funding cycle, and we will soon complete a full three years of the funding cycle.

Part II. Juvenile Justice Crime Prevention Act (JJCPA) – (Government Code Section 30061(b)(4))

A. Information Sharing and Data

Describe your information systems and their ability to facilitate the sharing of data across agencies within your county. Describe the data obtained through these systems and how those data are used to measure the success of juvenile justice programs and strategies.

San Francisco's assorted agencies employ multiple information systems for measuring the success of juvenile justice programs and their participants. The San Francisco Department of Children, Youth and Families (DCYF) captures participation data from juvenile justice programs in its Contract Management System (CMS). CMS holds participant demographics, frequency of participation, and descriptions of services received. Data entered into CMS originates from staff at agencies funded by DCYF.

San Francisco's Juvenile Probation Department a case management system to track information related to juveniles referred to the department for screening. JPD recently moved to a new system in June 2018 which should improve the breadth and quality of information collected. This information includes demographic data, family history, contact dates, charges filed, petitions filed, petitions sustained, dispositions, and release dates.

To facilitate the sharing of data across agencies for evaluation and program improvement purposes, DCYF and partner justice agencies have recruited American Institutes for Research (AIR), a research and evaluation firm under contract with the DCYF, to gather, merge and analyze data from multiple agencies' information systems.

Having established secure access to DCYF, SFJPD and SFDA records, AIR has been actively matching data to support identification and analyses of trends in juvenile and TAY participation in supportive programming. Additionally, AIR has begun collecting qualitative data in order to deepen the City's shared understanding of the implementation and quality of services offered for justice involved youth and TAYA.

B. Juvenile Justice Coordinating Councils

Does your county have a fully constituted Juvenile Justice Council (JJCC) as prescribed by Welfare & Institutions Code 749.22?

YES / NO

If no, please explain what vacancies exist on your JJCC, when those vacancies began and your plan for filling them.

- Evidence Upon Which It Is Based: While the purpose of detention centers is to hold youth who have been accused of committing a crime during the adjudication process, research shows that it is important to offer youth enrichment activities that includes building pro-social skills and resiliency. Detention Programming is designed to reduce recidivism and help youth increase resilience, and prepare them to return to their community.
- Description: ADAPT: A Dream and A Plan for Tomorrow is an array of services that includes providing 1 on 1 academic support towards HS completion, GED test prep, and or subject specific tutoring facilitated through a weekly study hall program on maximum security boy's unit #7. Additionally, workshops are conducted teaching a variety of visual arts strategies through virtual platforms during covid19 pandemic and Shelter in Place Order.

- Program Name: Potrero Hill Neighborhood House / Peer Counseling
- Evidence Upon Which It Is Based: While the purpose of detention centers is to hold youth who have been accused of committing a crime during the adjudication process, research shows that it is important to offer youth enrichment activities that includes building pro-social skills and resiliency. Detention Programming is designed to reduce recidivism and help youth increase resilience, and prepare them to return to their community.
- Description: The PHNH Peer Counseling program serves youth ages 10-21. Youth who become justice-involved are in need of counselors and adult allies to reduce recidivism and encourage positive activities and engagement. Peer Counseling offers support to individuals to create a change in their lifestyle upon arrest and connects youth to the resources needed to secure the change.

- Program Name: Mission Neighborhood Center / Young Queens on the Rise
- Evidence Upon Which It Is Based: Gender-responsive programming has been proven to offer treatment that addresses root causes such as why girls have become involved in the justice system which is often linked to trauma or a history of victimization. Programs may include a comprehensive approach to addressing safety, empowerment, and family and relationship (peer and romantic) support. Girls and Young Women's

- Programming is designed to reduce recidivism and promote healthy social environments across family, peers, community, social institutions, and society.
- Description: Young queens on the rise is a gender specific program designed to meet the needs of young women involved in the juvenile justice system. Participants receive case management services to include intake, assessment, case planning and monitoring, referrals, court advocacy and crisis intervention. Participants also attend weekly life skills and support groups on Thursday evenings. Young women may be referred by juvenile justice system, self referral, parent or family referral, school or other agency referrals.
  - Program Name: Special Services for Group / OTTP
  - Evidence Upon Which It Is Based: Gender-responsive programming has been proven to offer treatment that addresses root causes such as why girls have become involved in the justice system which is often linked to trauma or a history of victimization. Programs may include a comprehensive approach to addressing safety, empowerment, and family and relationship (peer and romantic) support. Girls and Young Women's Programming is designed to reduce recidivism and promote healthy social environments across family, peers, community, social institutions, and society.
  - Description: OTTP provides services to young women involved in the juvenile justice system in San Francisco. The gender responsive program is designed to maximize client engagement and retention by promoting feelings of empowerment and self-determination. Strength-based, culturally-based, client centered interventions are conducted in group and individual sessions held at Civic Center Secondary School, Hilltop High School, the OTTP office site, and community settings. Utilizing the evidence-based practice of occupational therapy, we provide occupation-based interventions that pair sensory and cognitive approaches to calm bodies and minds, further develop relationships and communication skills, model emotional management strategies, teach empowerment strategies, and offer proximal support as the young women practice these skills in their daily contexts. Additionally, clients engage in a participatory occupational/vocational assessment to increase self-awareness regarding their interests, values, sensory profile, strengths, and growth areas pertaining to setting personal, academic, relationship and career goals. These goals inform therapeutic sessions, and are regularly reviewed and updated as the young women progress through the OTTP program.
  - Program Name: Community Youth Center of SF / API Violence Prevention Services
  - Evidence Upon Which It Is Based: Programs that support youth throughout their full experience in the justice system may help address their pro-social skills, resiliency and create positive youth experiences and tools as they exit the justice system. Multi-Service Strategy is designed to reduce recidivism, ensure successful reentry and help youth build the skills and resiliency to prevent further engagement in the juvenile justice systems.
  - Description: API Violence Prevention Services (APIVPS) will provide case management and services/supports at community-based sites that are safe and accessible to youth/TAY. SEL Workshops, case management and individual and family therapy will be provided at sites including CYC's three offices, partnering community based organizations such as Samoan Community Development Center, Juvenile Justice Center, Community Assessment Referral Center, etc. Home visits to a youth's family will also be conducted. Psychiatric services will be provided by CYC's Clinical Director. Using the Child and Adolescent Needs and Strengths Methodology (CANS), intake and assessment will be conducted for information to determine appropriate intervention services and activities. CYC's Case Manager will work with the police department, Juvenile/Adult Probation Department, and District Attorney's Office on the release plan for youth who have been referred to CYC for case management. Cognitive Behavioral Therapy and Motivational Interviewing counseling style will be used for eliciting behavioral change. SEL focused culturally competent workshops (conflict resolution, bullying, anger management, emotional regulation, harassment, assertive communication, time management, goal setting, etc.) will be provided along with interactive activities and community service. Referrals to other services will be made as needed. Programs will be provided virtually or in-person as permitted.

The Tailor Made Diversion Program targets in-risk youth ages 14-17 by providing: one-on-one and peer group support, skills on making healthy choices, referrals to mental health services, substance use treatment, education supports, job skills development and provide other supportive services as needed.

- Program Name: Family Navigator
- Evidence Upon Which It Is Based: Per the Annie E. Casey Foundation, it is increasingly clear that involving families is instrumental to a young person's success at all stages of the juvenile justice system and that families play an integral role in the support of that young person, both as they traverse the system and beyond. Partnering with families assists young people in carrying out court and probation obligations, can provide supervision, protection, guidance, and emotional support, and can affirm family connections. Juvenile justice system professionals should work in support of and in partnership with a young person's loved ones.
- Description: The Family Navigator will support young people and their self-identified family members throughout their experience in the juvenile justice system. The need for this type of support was identified through community-based listening sessions with youth and families who have been impacted by the juvenile justice system in San Francisco. The Family Navigator will:
  - Support the family throughout their loved one's court proceedings and probation commitments ensuring that they understand what is happening to their loved one.
  - Provide support for family to be knowledgeable and prepared for all interactions with the court, probation, attorneys, and other system professionals.
  - Ensure family voices are being heard and considered by all system professionals (attorneys, judges, probation officers, social workers, etc.)
  - Work with families to make sure other basic needs are met by connecting them to appropriate resources and services to ensure they have what they need to be able to show up for the young person they love.
