6 UCSF announced sudden plans to close New Generations, one of the few clinics serving teens in the 7 Mission, Bayview, Excelsior, and Visitacion Valley communities, which has the potential to leave 8 young women and men of color without needed reproductive health education and access to birth
9 control, pregnancy testing, and testing for sexually transmitted infections. The clinic served as a 10 primary referral site for school nurses for students in need of reproductive health services and has 11 been a place that youth felt most comfortable going for confidential services because the clinic only 12 serves youth. The clinic is slated to be closed by in Summer 2016.

13

14 The Youth Commission urges the Board of Supervisors to form a youth-inclusive work group with 15 afterschool meetings to plan for ways to connect teens to services without interruption in their 16 reproductive health services, as well as review the needs of San Francisco teens in Southeast 17 neighborhoods for reproductive health services in a confidential youth-oriented environment.
