Resolution urging the City to take various actions to support vulnerable youth during the COVID-19 Pandemic, to increase at-distance programming for youth in San Francisco and to not cut funding for youth-oriented services and programs, recommending certain cuts to departments’ budgets, and requesting Youth Commission representation on bodies created to respond to the economic and social effects of the COVID-19 pandemic.

WHEREAS, On March 11, 2020, the World Health Organization described COVID-19, an infectious disease caused by the most recently discovered coronavirus, a term designating a family of viruses known to cause respiratory infections ranging from the common cold to more severe diseases, as a pandemic; and

WHEREAS, Since March 16, 2020, the City and County of San Francisco (“the City”) has implemented various iterations of a Shelter in Place order, requiring individuals and families to practice social distancing and stay at home as much as possible to limit the spread of the virus; and

WHEREAS, The State of California followed suit on March 19, 2020, and both the City and State are currently undergoing a phased reopening, which however is not anticipated to result in an end to Shelter in Place restrictions for a significant period of time; and

WHEREAS, The successive orders have resulted in the closing of all schools, many daycare programs, and many after-school and community based programs serving youth in San Francisco; and

WHEREAS, According to the United States Census Bureau, 13.4 percent of the population of San Francisco are persons under 18 years of age; and
WHEREAS, The youth population of San Francisco includes all of these persons as well as Transitional Age Youth, aged 18 through 25, who are not counted as a separate category in population surveys; and

WHEREAS, While the federal government of the United States ("US") has passed legislation to send stimulus checks of up to $1,200 to most US taxpayers, most undocumented immigrants will not receive this economic support; and

WHEREAS, Undocumented youth, and the children of undocumented parents, will therefore not receive the same level of economic support from the federal government as other youth and their families; and

WHEREAS, The effects of the pandemic, both in terms of public health and in terms of economic impact, have been felt hardest in historically and currently underserved communities, specifically Black, Indigenous and Latinx communities, with the highest concentrations of cases in the Japantown, Tenderloin, South of Market, Mission, Potrero Hill, Bayview Hunter’s Points, Excelsior and Outer Mission neighborhoods as of June 12, 2020; and

WHEREAS, Furthermore, youth who are currently unsheltered, unhoused, and/or incarcerated are especially vulnerable to the COVID-19 virus due to those circumstances; and

WHEREAS, According to data from Larkin Street Youth Services ("Larkin"), one of the City’s main service providers for youth experiencing homelessness, as of June 12, 2020, COVID-19 and the Shelter in Place Order have had significant impacts on the provision of services for youth experiencing homelessness; and

WHEREAS, Notably, Larkin has seen an increase in incident reports related to mental health, suicide ideation, and challenging behaviors related to substance use and mental health symptoms among clients, and a 66% increase in monthly referrals to their behavioral health team; and WHEREAS, Larkin reports that while the number of drop-ins has remained consistent through the progression of the pandemic and implementation of the Shelter in Place Order, the corresponding needs are heightened, including but not limited to showers and services for stress and anxiety; and

WHEREAS, Larkin reports that about 40% of their housed clients have either lost a job (1/3 of those impacted) or lost hours (2/3 of those impacted), that having limited staff due to the current situation hinders their capacity to provide in person one-on-one employment services to clients, and that clients having inconsistent contact information due to difficulties in compliance with the Shelter in Place Order makes it difficult to contact Office of Economic and Workforce Development/Workforce Investment and Opportunity Act clients for follow up and employment status; and

WHEREAS, Shelter capacity is reduced due to the necessity of social distancing, with Larkin’s Diamond Youth Shelter at 50% capacity and Lark-Inn at 25% occupancy, along with a dramatic increase in the number of clients housed through emergency housing vouchers; and

WHEREAS, Additionally, the incarcerated population is currently at greater risk of contracting COVID-19, as City, State and Federal leaders have not made or been slow to make significant adjustments, including closing jails and prisons, to allow for social distancing; and

WHEREAS, The youth population is now cut off both from in-person interaction with support systems such as friends and colleagues, and from in-person educational and recreational resources that are usually available to youth; and

WHEREAS, Not all schools were able to promptly switch to at-distance learning, meaning that youth were not interacting on a regular basis with their teachers and peers, even in virtual spaces; and
WHEREAS, Many students are disadvantaged by the Shelter in Place Order, such as those who may not be able to graduate school on time, those struggling with online school as a learning medium, and those do not have access to virtual devices; and

WHEREAS, Additionally, some youth, especially LGBTQ+ youth and victims of domestic violence, may not be in a safe environment when confined to their homes; and

WHEREAS, Various hotlines for victims of domestic abuse and violence in San Francisco, such as the Asian Women’s Shelter and WOMAN., Inc, have seen an increase in calls since the implementation of the Shelter in Place Order, following a nationwide trend showing that as of April 6, 2020, the National Domestic Violence Hotline has received well over 2,000 calls in which COVID-19 was cited as a condition of abuse; and

WHEREAS, The Department of Children Youth and their Families (“DCYF”), which contracts outside organizations as service providers for educational and recreational services and programs for youth and families in San Francisco, currently funds approximately 446 programs; and

WHEREAS, As of April 1, 2020, 11 of those programs remained open and 125 programs were operating remotely, for a total of only 136, that is 30 percent, of programs continuing to serve youth; and

WHEREAS, According to a Service Providers Working Group survey of 28 programs from 27 unique agencies providing a broad range of services funded by DCYF published on April 15, 2020, 67.9% of the 28 programs had reduced direct service programming, while 21.4% had somewhat reduced direct service programming; and

WHEREAS, According to the same survey, 51.9% of 27 agencies reported incurring increased, unexpected costs due to COVID-19, related to the costs of working from home, additional cleaning, acquiring personal protective equipment, or providing emergency support for clients; and WHEREAS, While DCYF is providing trainings for their service providers on how to implement at-distance learning, it is clear that the department and its service providers are so far unable to maintain the same level of service provision during this time of uncertainty for youth, workers, and the City; and

WHEREAS, On March 31, 2020, the City Controller, Mayor’s Budget Director, and Board of Supervisors Budget and Legislative Analyst released a Joint Budget Outlook Update Report estimating a combined budget shortfall of between $1.1 billion and $1.7 billion over the next two fiscal years (FY 2020-2021 and FY 2021-2022), including losses compared to estimated revenue during the remaining span of the current fiscal year (FY 2019-2020); and

WHEREAS, The Mayor has requested that departments cut their budgets by 10% in FY 2020-2021 with an additional 5% contingency cut in FY 2021-2022 to offset revenue loss and balance the budget as required by law; and

WHEREAS, However, it is just as clear that the need for at-distance programs that engage youth on an educational as well as recreational basis has never been higher; and

WHEREAS, A survey of United Kingdom (“UK”) youth, who have been under comparable restrictions as San Francisco youth, by the UK youth mental health charity Young Minds showed that 83 percent of respondents agreed that the coronavirus pandemic had made their mental health worse, with 32 percent saying it had made their mental health “much worse”; and

WHEREAS, The same survey, which was conducted between March 20, 2020, the day on which UK schools closed to most students, and March 25, 2020, when further restrictive measures had been put in place in the UK, also showed that 66 percent of respondents agreed that watching or reading the news was unhelpful for their mental health; and

WHEREAS, Anecdotal evidence Youth Commissioners have heard from friends, contacts, and constituents paints a similar picture among San Francisco youth; and WHEREAS, While continuing to aggressively respond to the ongoing public health crisis, the City still has an obligation to serve the unmet needs of San Francisco youth, especially given the direct negative impact on the social, mental, and economic wellbeing of San Francisco youth this crisis has caused; and

WHEREAS, The City should not leave youth to solve these issues on their own, but should systematically treat the preservation their social, mental, and economic wellbeing as a key part of its response to the state of emergency it is currently in; and

WHEREAS, On the other hand, there are many programs currently in the City’s budget, enumerated below, which either fail to serve a meaningful purpose, or even directly harm the wellbeing of San Francisco youth; and

WHEREAS, While the Youth Commission recognizes that balancing the budget in this time of crisis and increased need will be a difficult task, it will also be a measure of the City’s values in the choices made to preserve or eliminate youth services and programs; and

WHEREAS, The Mayor and President of the Board of Supervisors have convened a COVID-19 Economic Recovery Task Force to elaborate solutions to the socioeconomic crisis caused by the COVID-19 pandemic; and

WHEREAS, It is also a measure of the City’s values the extent to which City leaders solicit and listen to the input of young people in shaping how the City responds to this economic crisis; and

WHEREAS, The City should not let San Francisco’s youth pay for this crisis, either in their health, both physical and mental, or in their economic futures, or in their ability to make themselves heard when they are at their most vulnerable; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the Youth Commission declares and affirms its full support for the local and statewide Shelter in Place and Stay at Home Orders as necessary to save lives, from SFMTA fare enforcement and homelessness response protocols, and otherwise
